

TPG Specialty Lending, Inc. Highlights Four Key Facts for TICC Stockholders to Consider about Their Dividend

October 13, 2015

NEW YORK--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Oct. 13, 2015-- TPG Specialty Lending, Inc. ("TSLX"; NYSE:TSLX), a specialty finance company focused on lending to middle-market companies, today issued the following statement in response to a misleading press release issued by TICC Capital Corp. ("TICC"; Nasdaq: TICC) regarding its stockholder distribution.

FACT 1: TICC's net asset value has consistently declined over the last few years which is in part a direct reflection of TICC's policy to distribute investor capital as part of its dividend policy. The simple fact of paying a dividend consisting of investor capital is unsustainable, this is true regardless of TICC's supposed interpretation of accounting rules.

FACT 2: Five respected, independent equity analysts believe that TICC's dividend is unsustainable. TICC does not address the concerns raised by these independent voices.

FACT 3: TICC re-issued a stockholder letter updating how it refers to its dividend to directly state the dividend is in part a return of investor capital. TICC decided to bury this statement in a footnote. Stockholders should be mindful of these disclosures and how they contradict TICC's own narrative.

FACT 4: TSLX has been clear about its approach to its dividend policy and the long-term sustainability of such policy. TSLX has been clear that with TICC it believes it can grow the TSLX dividend. TICC has made no such similar statements about BSP's ability to grow the TICC dividend over time.

Josh Easterly, Chairman and Co-Chief Executive Officer of TSLX, commented: "TSLX has delivered a strong, clear and bona fide offer to give TICC's stockholders, the true owners of the company, an upfront premium and an opportunity to enjoy the value-creation of a superior platform. We believe the facts are simple and stockholders will not be misled by complex and flawed arguments about CLO accounting and quarterly distributions. TICC's past failed performance speaks for itself and we look forward to solidifying our support of TICC stockholders over the coming weeks."

TSLX also reminds stockholders that TICC has still not directly answered four simple questions. Those questions are repeated below with a continued request for direct answers from TICC.

1. Are management or interested board members of TICC receiving compensation, remuneration, or other payments related to the proposed change of control of the TICC external manager?
2. As compared to other business development companies and asset classes, what results has management's leadership produced for TICC stockholders in the past three years? What about since TICC's initial public offering under this management team and board supervision?
3. Why should the TICC external manager that oversaw massive underperformance now be paid a premium to leave? Why can't the board simply replace the manager in a way that pays TICC stockholders instead? Who is the TICC board looking out for here?
4. Is TICC's dividend sustainable? Is TICC currently earning enough to deliver its dividend? Does TICC disagree with five respected independent analysts who believe the TICC dividend will be cut?

While TICC has addressed the accounting of its dividend, it has explicitly avoided any comment about the sustainability of said policy.
